

Dear FCC,

I just want to let you know what a tremendous service KLOVE provides to families like mine. There are very few radio stations that you can listen to and be assured that you will not be answering awkward questions from your four year old or try to explain why adults can talk like that and children can't to your eight year old. I would much rather have spiritual conversations with my kids. I would rather hear my kids sing about God and love than sex, violence, and guns. In my community I know a lot of families that listen to this station. Losing KLOVE would be a huge loss for us all.

The fact that KLOVE is broadcast in so many areas just makes my job as a mom even better. We listen to KLOVE all over northern California. What ever you are doing with the LPFM please do not let it impact something so positive as KLOVE. KLOVE is definitely a station that serves the public interest. The positive messages and music is heard all over the United States. People who listen to this station come from every walk of life. It crosses cultural, ethnic, age, and economic lines and very few stations can say that.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter

Lynn Goodison
